WHERE?

Was a fun holiday season and a beautiful January 1, 2010 here in Encinitas and SoCal. Visited the San Diego Zoo with its "Jungle Bells" display at night, and the Wild Animal Park in Escondido gave all of its fur friends fun "gifts" of boxes decorated by children who visited the park. New Year's day was an extreme low tide here with lots of tide pooling discoveries!

My next event will be at Dexter's Deli in Del Mar on Sunday, February 21, from 1-2PM with a FREE talk about communications, my book, and the year of the Tiger! Come on by...go to Dexter's website at: <http://www.dextersdeli.com/>

WHO, HOW AND WHAT?

Valentine's Day and Chinese New Year on February 14, 2010!

This year Valentine's day is super special and charged with "auspicious" energies of not only love, but of family and community, fame and fortune! It is the start of the year of the Tiger according to the Chinese calendar.

Year of the Tiger:

The "Tiger" is difficult to resist with its powerful roar as well as its deep soft purr. On the positive side, it is courageous, strong, independent and big hearted. The Tiger also holds the opposite traits of inflexibility, moodiness, is disobedient and predatory. To balance these traits is the challenge for this year...to be flexible and graceful through quick thunderous change.

Go to www.gotoastrology.com to find out a bit about "how" you (or your Chinese birth animal) will prowl through the year of the Tiger!

Metal is the element of this year's Tiger...that element can be found in the Children / Creativity gua in your home or yard. Why not strengthen that space as well by giving a nice new red toy and playing in this space with your fur folk. When they are happy in this space you can watch your creativity bloom along with having fun with your fur kids!

Use your imagination to show your love and respect for your animals during this auspicious time of year. Put your intent of "Tiger" qualities of big heart and love into this New Year and give thanks and joy to your pets for their constant unconditional love and magic.

E-mail me for a pdf all about this upcoming year of the Tiger and find out about "red envelope" gifts and celebrations to come, just ask at: paula@furshui.com and I will send along a pdf! OR, go to "The Honest Kitchen's" blog for a short version of the pdf at: <http://bit.ly/bLKOYk>

I will be giving a talk at Dexter's Deli in Del Mar on Sunday, February 21, from 1-2PM about communications, the year of the Tiger, and book signing with a prize give away...come on down and listen in! "Gung Hay Fat Choy"; Happy New Year of the Tiger!

"Fur Shui" tip for Year of the Tiger:

For grounding your fur folk and you through this fast paced year, strengthen your Health gua, which is right in the middle of your home. Go to www.furshui.com and look at the "Bagua" for info on the Health gua. Put your the intent of balance and health into this space by making a nice bed or sleep area with the color gold or yellow for your pet in this area.
